Ignoring the facts that British gold ancestors during the war of the Ravolution: that they were employed to massacre battle of the River Raisin; that a British in every Church in the land: army of vandals burned our National Cap-Ital, an act such as Bonaparte never was gallty of; that Sepoy prisoners were massmored by thousands, and blown from cannens, the English press, from the Loudon Times down to the one-horse country paper, with a few honorable exceptions, Give thanks, all ye people, give thanks to the have kept up a constant whine about the famous but very proper order of General Batler, and General Gillmore's Greek fire. The venerable careses of Mr. Bull fairly world with the oil of benevolence, and one would think from reading his papers, that he monepolized all the spirit of humanity, and that the rest of the world were simply outside barbarians.

To show the canting hypocrisy of the emerital pless of Begiand, we will only refer to the most crowl and barbarous act ever personally a nation pretending to to Japan by a British flest, under the e mmsal of Almiral Juper. This brutal officer, without giving the customary notice to remove the women and children, bombarded and burnt a city containing a population of 180,090! The amount of misery thus inflicted upon that yant population oan belmagined by reading the following extract from a communication publighed by Mr. Charles Buxton in the London Times :

"It needs no stretch of imagination to town of Kagceima. Being built of wood and paper, whatever a shell lighted the flames must instantly have spread for and wide. The town contained 180,000 peo-ple, and in the awful consternation with which that wast multitude must have been seized, with fires blasing forth in all parts of the town, and shells bursting among them, it is impossible to hote that there was not frightful loss of life (and that by the most terrible of deaths) among the chil dren, the aged, and the sick; and such horrors might, of course, have been foreseen, with a hurricane blowing at the time, gould not but kindle the flames to mfold fury.

"But I fear the loss of life at the moment was but a small part of the misery that must have ensued. Fancy a multitude

Who May Frank.

There would seem to be a determination on the part of a class of correspondents not to understand the requirements of the postal act of last March, respecting the franking privilege and the forms to be observed in addressing matter entitled by law to pass free in the mails:

First.-No private citizen, high or low, can send a letter or decument of any kind, or any other thing, to any officer or pub-lic man at Washington or elsewhere (excepting to members of the United States Senate and House of Representativec,) without prepaying the full postage there-on, whether such matter is upon official business er otherwise. He must prepay letters to the President of the United States, his Cabinet officers, and all others in public stations, with the above excep-tions. The franking privilege of mem-bers of Congress has not been materially changed, and covers all correspondence to and from them as heretofore.

SECOND .- All persons employed in the government service may send efficial let-ters free to the department at Washington with which they are efficially connected, and to no other department, provided they write or print the words "official business" on the envelope of the letter, and also eign their name and official designstion thereto. If these words or signature or either of them, he omitted, such letter must be sent to the Dead Letter Office, which, we regret to say, happens daily in all large postoffices. Some of these unucky missives and parcels are addressed to President Lincoln, the Secretary of the Navy, Secretary of War, Adjutant General, Quartermaster General and other high of-ficials. No doubt some of them are written by private citizens (who, it has already been shown, must prepay everything they mail,) and others by public officers, who, from ignorance of the law or care lessures, do not comply with the pre-scribed modes of franking, or fail to con-fine their use of the frank to their own departments. An officer of the army, for instance, cannot send free to the Navy Department, nor can a post-master frank to the Tressury Department.

The publication of the above informaon has the authority of the Postmaster General .- U. S. Mail.

Freaks of a Lunnile.

At three o'clock Sunday morning, a lunatic named Robertson, a resident of Brush Valley, Indians county Pennsylvanis, escaped from his room in Dixmont Hospital, bitting through a portion of the windowessing, by which he was enabled to remove . He had been in the habit of the sash. He had been in the habit of tearing his clothing from his person, and Cur guilt and transgressions remember no more;

out a large piece of bread, with which he made off. Toward the middle of the day he reached Allegheny, and the sensation which he created may be better imagined than descriced. He was soon after taken in custody by officer McKain, and detained in the Mayor's office until the afternoon, when he was conveyed to his old quarters at Dixmont. While in the office he related his adventures in a very rational and connected manner, and was very much amused at the trepidation exhibited by the people to whom he applied for breakfast. He showed no viciousness whatever, and, although willing to go back, he declared he would not remain there, as there was nothing at all the matter with him.

How General Meade was Chattenged by a A private employed as a blacksmith at headquarters was recently suspended by the thumbs to a tall pine tree, and a pail of cold water slowly poured upon his crauium by a man on a ladder several feet above. He received the runlahment with as great a degree of somplacency as could be expected under the circumstances, but still exhibited an apparent sense of humili-ation which I think it impossible for even eminent men, is too absurd. But should the most stolcal rascal to repress on occatomary in the army, when the weather is severe, or when the men have undergone laborious fatigue duty, to issue to them rations of whiskey, the effect of which in some instance, is to bring out in hold relief every selfish animal proclivity of man's matter, leaving every commendible attribute in the background. It was thus in the instance of the sulprive ferred to, who took consection while in a notification of the sulprive ferred to, who have seeding while in a notification of the sulprive ferred to, who have seeding while in a notification of the sulprive ferred to, who The Original Brait of the Emancipation
